$20 DEBT CLAIM CAUSES SHOOTING

Police Declare Difficulty Over Proceeds of Rum-Running Venture at Bottom of Slaying.

Determination of C. N. McIntyre, known to his cronies as "Wompie," to collect $20 which, according to police, he believed still to be due him as his share in a load of corn whiskey brought from north Georgia to Atlanta, led Monday to his death at the hands of Leon Nichols, 20, of 90 Gaskill street.

McIntyre was shot three times at noon Monday and killed outright as he stood on the curb in front of 164 Ivy street. Leon Nichols and G. L. Nichols, of Birmingham, brothers; George T. Poole, of Birmingham, and W. M. Thompson, who gave his address as 60 Currier street, were arrested as occupants of the automobile from which the shots were fired. Leon Nichols, according to police, admitted having fired the shots "in self defense." Nichols and his companions are held on blanket charges of suspicion.

Captain A. J. Holcombe, of the police department, said Leon Nichols showed no hesitancy in discussing the shooting. According to the officer, Nichols said he fired to save his own life after having been told a week ago by McIntyre that the latter intended to "cut my head off my shoulders."

Nichols' written statement, in affidavit form, as given to Captain Holcombe, follows:

"Well, Captain, I was sitting in an automobile on Ivy street when McIntyre drove up behind me in another car and stopped. I didn't think anything about it until a little boy yelled, 'Look out, Leon, he's going to cut your head off.'

"I looked around and saw McIntyre coming towards me. I then began to shoot because we had had trouble Saturday night and McIntyre

Five-Day Notice Marriage System Dealt Heavy Blow

House Judiciary Committee Favors Abolition of Banns Where Parties Are Over 21.

MINISTERS LEAD FIGHT ON CHANGE

Declare Present Law Is Curb to Hasty Marriages Following on Heels of Petting Parties.

Judiciary committee No. 2 of the house of representatives Monday refused to report favorably a bill by Representative Steed, of Taylor, which would repeal the five-day notice marriage law. Instead, it gave a favorable vote to a bill by Representative Rosser, of Walker, which would require no notice where both parties were 21 years old or over.

When the marriage measures, three in number, came before the committee, the room was packed, many persons opposed to any change in the present law being present to voice opposition.

The Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt, president of the South Atlanta district, of the Methodist church, one of the opposition speakers, declared these kids with their, bobbed hair that he was "against turning loose and rolled stockings to come from their petting parties at a late hour in the night to the ministers to be married."

Representative Steed, in defending his measure, which was the subject of most of the attack, declared that 20 ordinances had written him, asking that the law be repealed. "The law defeats its own purpose," he said. By forcing the couples to go out of the state to get married, he said, "made marriages of doubtful legality, and he doubted if the law were in harmony with other laws relating to marriage."

"What is really done," he declared, "is to put a penalty on marriage."

This law, he concluded, destroys the romance attaching to marriage, by destroying the secrecy of the engagement.

"There are just two items necessary for a proper marriage," said the speaker, "honor and integrity on the part of the parties."

Pastor Scores Plan To Alter Marriage Law

Recommended Change Would Practically Nullify Law, Says Hunnicutt.

Intense disappointment at the action of judiciary committee No. 2 of the house of representatives in recommending that no notice of marriage be required of persons over 21 years of age in Georgia, was expressed Monday night by the Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt, president elder of the South Atlanta district of the Methodist church.

"The committee might just as well have recommended that the entire bill be repealed," Dr. Hunnicutt said, "for if the legislature follows its report, the purposes of the five-day notice law will be practically nullified."

Dr. Hunnicutt explained that in recommending that no notice be required of persons over 21 who are contracting parties to marriages, the committee is urging passage of a law which would allow any couple to get married at any time and place.

"The commonest, and one of the oldest practices on earth," he stated, "is for young married people to discuss the truth in telling their ages in connection with marriage ceremonies. The committee which acted on this bill today proposes to take away from the people the right to know the truth in telling their ages."

Dr. Hunnicutt laughed down any idea that young couples who falsify their ages would be punished. "Marriage once consummated," he stated, "the good or evil that will result from it is permanent. I know, and everyone else knows, that no law would take a young groom from the

FUND OF $626,000 ASKED BY TECH

Request for New Buildings Requested of Appropriations Committee by President Brittain.

HARRIS PLEADS FOR INCREASES

Brown Also Asks Committee for Larger Appropriation for State Agricultural Department.

Georgia Tech, the largest of Georgia's institutions of higher education, Monday asked a maintenance appropriation of $191,000 per year for the years 1926 and 1927, when Dr. M. L. Brittain, president, appeared before the house committee on appropriations. In addition to this amount, which is at the rate of $100 for each of the 1,910 regular college students now enrolled at Tech, the institution asks a supplementary appropriation for this year of $35,000, $200,000 for a new dormitory, and $200,000 for a civil engineering building.

Former Governor Nat L. Harris, chairman of the board of trustees, also spoke on behalf of the appropriation for Tech, stating that this institution was listed as one of the three greatest technological colleges in the country and was the only educational institution in Georgia with a national and international reputation.

J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, also appeared before the committee Monday and asked an increase in the annual maintenance appropriation for his department of $10,000 and an additional $2,000 for the statistical department of his office.

In addition to this, Commissioner Brown strongly urged favorable action on the $30,000 additional appropriation asked for the state board of entomology, of which he is chairman. He also asked the committee to look favorably on the $15,000 appropriation asked by the coastal plains experimental station at Tifton and an appropriation for the state experimental station at Griffin.

Urges Anti-Tick Fence.

Commissioner Brown spoke of the long fight made against the cattle tick in Georgia by the state veterinarian and his successful conclusion, but warned that unless steps were taken to prevent reinfestation from Florida, the work would have to be done again. He declared it was unfair to ask small counties, such as Florida, to carry the entire burden of preventing reinfestation of the tick from that state, and recommended that a fence be erected to keep cattle from crossing from the Florida side into Georgia.

Commissioner Brown spoke with special emphasis on the work done by Georgia Tech and said that this institution was doing greater work for development of agriculture in Georgia than any other. He endorsed work being done by all agricultural educational institutions in the state and said that, while duties of his department were largely administrative, he realized that the primary factor in upbuilding of agriculture in this state was an educational one, and that he was doing his utmost to cooperate with the state.

Alleged Killer Betrayed Self To Fellow Prisoner, Is Claim

Dalton, Ga., July 20.—(Special.)—After eluding searchers for about 26 years, Will Jones, alleged slayer, betrayed himself, and now faces a charge of murder. It was said here today when C. P. Hannah returned to this city from Denton, Texas, Mr. Hannah, who for more than a quarter of a century has been a prisoner in the state prison, claimed that he had information that Will Jones, alleged slayer of W. M. Hannah, chief of police of Dalton, claims to have a full confession of the killing of his father by Jones.

Whitfield county authorities today drew requisition papers and Governor Clifford Walker will be asked to request Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, governor of Texas, to return Jones to Georgia to stand trial for murder. Jones is now under sentence of 10 years after being convicted on charges of forgery, and there are three other charges against him in that state also, it was learned.

"While Jones was a prisoner, he told another prisoner, E. M. Bibby, held on a misdemeanor charge, that the present chief of police of Gainesville, Texas, was wanted for the murder of Chief Hannah," Mr. Hannah said. "He asked Bibby to communicate with Whitfield county officials for a description of the man."

"Bibby did. The letters were turned

Once again, for the sixth and last production of Atlanta's first summer season of light opera, dainty Louise Hunter demonstrated that at least 50 per cent of the success of these productions has been due to her work, when she sang and danced her way through Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts."

If ever there was a girl blessed with all the attributes of personality, charm, beauty and voice to carry her at one sweep to the heights of musical comedy stardom, it is Miss Hunter. Her name belongs in the brightest lights on Broadway and if it isn't there next season, some manager is overlooking a sure-thing bet.

As "Sylvia," in this week's production at the auditorium, she gives a performance that ought to assure a repetition of summer opera next year, and for many more to come.

Tuneful Opera.

The Victor Herbert opera, with the famous Smiths, Harry B. and Robert B., responsible for book and lyrics, proved a tuneful, frolicsome, beautiful thing and the opera association in the production has taken advantage of every opportunity for effect, both through the performers, the chorus and ballet, the costumes, scenery and lighting. Director Lewis Morton and Conductor Paul Eisler seem to have kept their finest inspiration for the final opera of the series.

Irene Dunne, as "Liane," continues the work she has so generously given all summer to make the season an outstanding success. Whenever Miss Dunne comes back to Atlanta—you know she played at the Atlanta a year ago in the title role of "Irene"—there are hundreds of people who will flock to see her because of their memories

HOUSE VIADUCTS MEASURE FAVORED

Senate Committee's Favorable Action Is Slated To Hasten Final Disposition of Matter.

The house resolution granting permission to the city of Atlanta to erect viaducts over the state-owned Western and Atlantic tracks at Central avenue and Pryor street was returned to the senate Monday night by the W. & A. committee of the senate with a favorable recommendation.

The measure was approved without a dissenting vote. Senator P. T. Knight, of the sixth district, and his associates who opposed the measure when it was first introduced into the committee several days ago, failed to voice their dissent. Senator Knight stated that he was reserving his action in the matter until he had more time to study it. He further reserved the right to oppose the bill on the floor of the senate in event he disapproved the measure, he stated.

The house resolution has passed the house and already has had two readings on the floor of the senate. A similar resolution has been introduced in the senate, but action by both houses on the house resolution will greatly expedite final disposition of the matter. Little or no opposition is anticipated by proponents of the bill. It was announced Monday night that a senate resolution introduced recently by Senator Knight asking the governor to furnish the senate with information regarding the Western & Atlantic property and the viaducts proposition was killed in committee. This resolution was aimed at delaying action on the viaducts measure.

CHANCE REMARK RESULTS IN PROBE.

Gainesville, Texas, July 20.—(AP) A chance remark, reported to have been made by J. B. Jones, when in jail at Denton, Texas, has started an investigation by officers in an effort to ascertain whether the prisoner is the man who shot down Senator W. M. Hannah, chief of police of Dalton, Ga., 26 years ago. C. P. Hannah, son of the man killed, came here to see the prisoner. He told officers Jones fitted the description of the man sought for more than a quarter of a century. The identification is not yet complete, however.

DIGNITY OF COURT THROWN TO WINDS

Dayton Crowds Cheer and Applaud Champions as They Clash in Historic Religious Controversy.

COURT WILL MOVE BACK INDOORS TODAY

Dayton, Tenn., July 20.—Court will be moved back indoors Tuesday morning. Attorney General Stewart announced Monday night after a conference with Judge Raulston.

Efforts will be made to keep down the crowd to avoid danger of the floor collapsing. Stewart and many others protested against the "circus atmosphere" created by the outdoor session Monday.

Stewart also decided to stop the general debate between Darrow and Bryan and announced he would oppose any attempt by Bryan to cross-examine Darrow or other defense lawyers.

Dayton, Tenn., July 20.—(AP)—Admitted agnosticism met fundamentalism here today as Clarence Darrow, defense attorney in the Scopes evolution case, drew William Jennings Bryan, associate counsel, upon the witness stand.

Hundreds of men and women, drawn from the peaceful hills and valleys for miles around, pushed close to the rough wooden platform beside the courthouse as the verbal swords of the two clashed time and again, sending off flashes that drew volleys of hand-clapping and booming mountain fox calls.

A silence, broken only by the rustling of the maple trees, settled over the crowd, as Arthur Garfield Hays announced the intention of the defense to call Bryan to the witness stand.

Bryan Vehement, Darrow Cool.

The former secretary of state was subjected to a grilling fire of examination upon his beliefs regarding science and the nature and the sources of the Scriptures. With vehemence, which often brought him to his feet, he repeatedly asserted his conviction of the Bible's truth and denounced his questioner as the foe of God and Christianity.

Calm for the most part, Mr. Darrow at intervals grew impatient and raised his own voice in accents of anger. The two men, facing each other on the high, rude platform, glared at each other in undisguised displeasure and assumed belligerent expressions which they emphasized with gestures of arm and finger.

The purpose was explained later by Mr. Darrow as an effort to "show

GERMANS TO AID SECURITY PLANS

Note to France Is Declared Satisfactory—Way Now Clear for Perfecting Treaty.

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, July 20.—Negotiations to secure the peace of Europe by a treaty will begin immediately, it was stated in authoritative quarters following the receipt of the German security note Monday.

The German note was described as satisfactory. Although it makes some reservations, the note does not reject definitely any point raised in the previous French note on the subject to which the German note was a reply. The broad question of security is not linked with the evacuation of Cologne, which still is occupied by allied troops six months after the evacuation treaty stipulated in the Versailles treaty.

There is no suggestion that the proposed security pact should be agreed to in a full-dress conference such as those which occurred frequently immediately after the war.

Ambassador von Hoesch, the German envoy, also informed Foreign Minister Briand that Germany had decided to give satisfaction to the last allied note regarding disarmament.

Following the conference between Briand and von Hoesch, French officials made one of the most important diplomatic announcements heard in some time. The arrival of the note, it was said, "means the veritable opening of negotiations."

The note will be published Tues

Mutineer Legislative Bloc To Force Extra Tax Session Planned by Senator Collier

Senate Concurs in Appropriation Measure for Rebuilding Milledgeville School Buildings.

Announcement by Senator J. C. Collier, of the 22d, that he will lead an insurgent bloc to force an extra session of the general assembly in November to oppose Governor Walker's tax reform program and to substitute therefor a general sales tax centered interest in the state senate Monday. Mr. Collier said the bloc movement already has support of about 25 senators. He said a meeting will be held of supporters of the bloc within the next few days for organization.

A bill providing that the governor shall appoint a committee of three experts to study sales tax possibilities is being considered by the bloc, the plan of Senator Collier contemplating sales taxes on lands, bonds, goods and other things sold or traded in Georgia. The bill would instruct the governor to call the extra session in November to consider the report.

Call for Sales Tax. Senator Collier's plan calls for a sales tax of about one-quarter of 1 per cent, in no case to exceed one-half of 1 per cent. He declared that should the income tax, proposed by the governor become a law, it would drive more money out of the state than could be estimated offhand. He said he knows of $10,000,000 waiting to come into the state, the decision being dependent upon what legislators do in regard to the income tax.

Governor Walker was asked Monday night for an expression in regard to Senator Collier's proposed fight on the governor's program, but declined to comment. He said in the first place he had not read the newspaper account of the bloc movement and that he was worn out from a tremendous day, but might be in a position this morning to discuss the proposal. The house bill appropriating $195,000 for replacement of burned buildings at the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville was passed unanimously by the senate Monday after an appeal for its passage by President J. Howard Ennis, of the senate.

Clerk Measure Passed. The bill allowing the clerk of the supreme court a stenographer at $1,200-a year passed the senate Monday by a vote of 27 to 3. Strenuous opposition was offered the measure by Senator Wilkinson, of the 49th. Senator Carlisle, of the 7th, who has constituted himself a watchdog of the treasury in so far as tax bills and salary increases are concerned, lifted the lid on this item and proposed that it be passed.

Another hot fight over the salary position developed over a bill seeking to increase the salary of the assistant commissioner of commerce and labor from $1,500 to $3,000 a year. Senator Carlisle again recommended passage of this bill. Senator Wilkinson spoke in opposition, stating that if the official involved did not like the salary the state offered he could resign. The bill was tabled on motion of Senator Knox, of the 3d.

During the salary discussion Senator Wilkinson declared that he would favor as great as 15 per cent cut in salaries of all state officials from the governor down.

"Present salaries are exorbitant," he said.

Bills Introduced. News bills introduced Monday included two by Senator Morgan, of the 1st, providing for districting of the state into 13 highway zones. Provision is contained in the bills that revenues from motor vehicle licenses and the state tax on gasoline shall be used for road building. Over $100,000 in highway improvements would result from use of these funds in connection with proceeds of the bond issue, it is said.

The constitution carried a resume of the plan of districting the state in a recent issue when Harvey Granger, of Savannah, road-building pioneer, held a meeting in Atlanta for the purpose of discussing the bill with legislators.

The privilege resolution introduced Friday by Senator Knight, of the 6th, calling on the governor for all information relative to a reported permit by the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad to the city of Chattanooga to extend Broad street through the Western & Atlantic properties in that city was adopted unanimously.

Forestry Contract Bill. The forestry contract bill, providing for assessment of lands used in reforestation work so that no hardship will be worked upon the owner in setting the property aside for timber growth, will probably be called up Wednesday for vote. The bill has been favorably reported by the forestry committee, Senator Morgan, chairman.

Contested bills will be considered by the county and county matters committee, Senator Boykin chairman, at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel. General judiciary committee No. 1, Senator Perkins chairman, will meet at 7 o'clock to-night at the Henry Grady hotel. The children's code commission bills are chief measures before this committee.

The insurance committee will hold a session at 10 o'clock this morning. General judiciary committee No. 2 will meet at 9 o'clock this morning in the supreme court, and the education committee will hold its meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel. Most important bills before the education committee are those relating to physical health education.

The school for the deaf committee meets at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the senate chamber, and the municipal government committee will assemble at 9 o'clock this morning in the messenger's room. The game and fish committee passed a small number of local bills prohibiting fishing in certain county streams for five years for certain breeds of fish, and will meet again within a few days to consider the general bill to change the hunting and fishing laws.

Fund Is Started For Small Boy Injured by Car

To defray hospital and doctors' bills for a five-year-old boy who suffered a fractured skull and other injuries last week when he was run down by an automobile, a subscription fund was opened Monday, sponsored by Thomas B. Paine and Sherwood Hurt with a first day's subscription of $10.

Mr. Paine, who is in charge of the subscriptions, and Mrs. Hurt opened the fund with contributions of $25 each. Dr. Leroy Childs, prominent Atlanta physician whose prompt medical attention at St. Joseph's infirmary is said to have saved the child's life, donated $50.

Charles D. Atkinson donated $10. The child is the son of worthy but destitute parents. He is in need of continuous medical attention, entailing an expense his family cannot defray. In his behalf the appeal has been made to the generosity of Atlantans.

Checks and subscriptions should be sent to Thomas B. Paine, 26 Currier street.

Houston, Texas, July 20.—A. L. Nelms, 63, prominent Houston cotton man for the last 40 years, was found dead at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday in his office in the Cotton Exchange building. He had been dead for several hours. A stroke of apoplexy is believed to have been the cause of his death.

COLORADO DRAGON QUILTS KU KLUX KLAN

Denver, July 20.—(AP)—Dr. John Galen Locke, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, of Colorado, announced here today he had submitted his resignation to Imperial Wizard Evans. The resignation followed friction between the grand dragon and national officers. This culminated last Friday night in the secession of the Denver Klan, following a telegram from Evans to local Klan officials instructing them to pay out no funds without an order from Evans. Since then 14 other Klan chapters have seceded. Dr. Locke has been grand dragon since 1921.

POLICEMEN INJURED IN CRASH OF AUTOS

Two city policemen and a woman were badly shaken up and bruised Monday night when a police emergency machine and a light coupe collided at the intersection of Atlanta avenue and South Boulevard. Miss Mae Bullard, of 101 Confederate avenue, who was driving the coupe, told Call Officers Otis Hewell and C. E. Ford, who were in charge of the emergency car, that she was just learning to drive and that it was the first time she had taken the car out alone. The officers accepted her explanation and no case was made. Both machines were badly damaged.

Rosa Bell Bray, 15-year-old negro boy, who lives in the rear of 110 North Boulevard, suffered a broken right arm and other injuries Monday night when he was knocked down by an automobile at the intersection of North Jackson street and Houston street.

The boy was taken to Grady hospital. Witnesses stated that the driver of the car failed to give the accident was investigated by Call Officers G. E. Williams and John H. Crankshaw.

A collision Monday afternoon between a Buick sedan and a county police car at the intersection of Pulaski and Bass streets resulted in three persons receiving cuts and bruises, while the driver of the Buick was jailed under $1,000 bond on charges of speeding and misdemeanor.

A collision in the accident were R. L. Barrett, 23, of 37 Haywood avenue, who was jailed; County Officer L. Ragsdale and an unidentified driver, who was riding with Barrett at the time of the crash. City Officers W. A. McKinney and F. L. Tipton investigated.

VICTORIOUS DUELIST SEALS WEIRD PACT

mies for six years. (No reason for this enmity was given.)

Last Saturday morning they met on the highway between Brawley and Imperial and came to blows. Ranch hands separated them. Then they drove to a quiet gulley off the main road and there came to an agreement to fight a duel with pistols, both pledging their words that the survivor would commit suicide within three days.

They were to stand back to back, march 12 paces away from each other, count three aloud and then begin firing.

Truden's letter said that Kirk, when it came to the crucial moment, "cheated" and fired at the count of two, wounding the other in the hip. Truden then fired and missed. Kirk fired again and also missed. Truden fired a second time and killed Kirk.

Truden said that Kirk fired only two shots, but there were three exploded shells in the pistol clutched in Kirk's dead hand when his body was found late today.

Letter Ends With Jest. After killing Kirk, Truden said in a short memorandum included in his letter he dragged the body out into the sun, he drew a rude map to guide searchers to the spot. Then he went up into the hills early this morning.

His letter concludes with a grim jest. After explaining that he had agreed to take his own life if he survived the duel, he continued: "I will do this as soon as I leave the valley. It is so hot that I would rather leave this life for a future in a cooler place, even though I am headed for a much hotter one, according to William Jennings Bryan."

The short memorandum also spoke of heat in the valley. "It was too hot to die in the valley," it read. "I knew it would be much easier in the hills. Our feud has carried over six years and we both knew it would mean our deaths sooner or later. He cheated on the agreement by firing too soon. I cannot cheat, so I will die."

Stranger Is Held. Truden's body was found upright against a large stone, a bullet hole in the temple. Kirk's body could not be found at the designated spot, although a disturbed pile of leaves and blood stains seemed to indicate that it had lain there. Further search revealed it not far away in a bullet hole in the abdomen and through the backbone, the pistol with three exploded shells in the dead man's hand.

Before the news of the affair had become public, a stranger entered the office of the coroner and asked to see Kirk's body.

The coroner asked him how he knew that Kirk was dead. "Never mind," said the stranger as he started for the door. He was arrested and lodged in jail, but he refused to give his name or reply to any questions.

AUTO MEN FAVOR 'TITLE' MEASURE

Approval of an editorial in Sunday's Constitution in regard to passage of an automobile title law similar to the one now in effect in the state of Colorado, was expressed by C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary of the Atlanta Automobile association, in a letter received Monday.

Mr. Hohenstein pointed out that this association, which is composed of nearly 200 leading automobile dealers, in every automotive trade line in Atlanta and vicinity, is the mouthpiece for the industry and that its statements represent the opinions of dealers throughout the state.

The law in question concerns the registering of the ownership of automobiles to eliminate selling of stolen cars in the state. It was introduced in the house by Representative Cliff Hatcher, of Burke county, and is based on the present law now in force in the state of Colorado, although it is designed to be effective with the minimum of road tape.

Operation of Law.

Its operation as outlined by Mr. Hohenstein is as follows: The measure would require the owner to register the car, securing the tag and title certificates at the same time by using the same blank form. The certificate is issued and is good for the life of the car so long as it is held by the original applicant. When the car is sold, the certificate is transferred with it, turned in to the motor vehicle commissioner, who issues the original inventor of the first stamp of engine and installed in 1815, is still doing useful work in London.

A Watt engine, designed by the original inventor of the first stamp of engine and installed in 1815, is still doing useful work in London.

the commissioner checks it carefully against his stolen car records and refuses to issue a certificate in the event he has a record of its theft.

"For the past two years," Mr. Hohenstein stated, "we have advocated and sponsored the uniform title law already adopted by 27 states, as we feel convinced it will destroy the market of the thief, feeling if his market is destroyed his incentive to steal will be removed. At the present session of the legislature we are advocating house bill No. 446, introduced by Hon. Cliff Hatcher, of Burke county. This bill embodies the principle of the title law in force in 27 states and will afford maximum protection to the automobile owner in Georgia without any cumbersome machinery, with little inconvenience, considering the protection acquired through the medium of strong centralized records in the motor vehicle commissioner's office at the state capital. Under the proposed measure, after all cars are properly titled, it will be practically impossible for a thief to sell a car in Georgia."

Small Additional Expense. The additional expense necessary is figured at $15,000 to $20,000, but this is considered negligible in comparison with the vast amount that will be saved dealers and owners in the state.

A similar bill introduced by Senator Carl Guesz, of the 34th district, was characterized as "inadequate" by Mr. Hohenstein.

"It will be practically impossible under this bill to secure a conviction of a man for receiving a stolen car," he said.

"If Georgia can have house bill No. 446 placed on her statute books, she will be standing shoulder to shoulder with every state in the southeast," he concluded.

HOLLOMON ADDRESSES WOMEN OF CHAMBER

The monthly meeting of the women's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce was held Monday night in the chamber building, with James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Constitution, as principal speaker. Mr. Hollomon spoke on "The North Georgia Mountains, Their Beauties and Their Legends," relating a number of legends of the section and telling of splendid work accomplished on the mountain highways and that to be done in the future.

He also spoke of the part Georgia has played in making national history, bringing out among other facts, that through the Georgia colony, the seed of democracy was planted in this country. He emphasized the value of co-operation in organizations, stating that only through unselfish service can tasks be accomplished.

Mrs. Nellie Nix Edwards gave several beautiful solos. Miss Susie C. Wailes, president of the division, urged the entire membership to be present at the opera presentation, "Sweethearts," on Tuesday night, this occasion having been designated as "All Atlanta night."

HOLMES ADDRESSES PHILADELPHIA MEET

Rev. Holmes said Christianity is being attacked by evolutionists, infidels and unconverted ministers more than at any other time in history.

"My advice to you is to pay no attention to the discussion which is being carried on for the purpose of defeating and clouding the minds of the people," he said.

Bishop W. H. Heard delivered the States.

Construction Work Never Lags at Whitfield Estates

DURING the summer months, while so many residential developments have been marking time in their construction programs—work at Whitfield Estates has neither ceased nor lagged, but has sped ahead with renewed vigor, and completed achievements now stand as testimony to the determination to provide here the wonderland of Florida's western coast.

More than five hundred workmen, under the direction of experienced engineers and landscape architects, have been steadily at work, adding their deft touches to the glorious scene which Nature has set.

Broad ribbons of street—65 feet in width and asphalt-paved—wind over the rolling slopes. Twenty miles of sidewalks, running along the flowering parkways, are nearing completion.

An extensive water system was planned and announced, and work on it has steadily gone forward. Within a short time the 500,000 gallon concrete and steel reservoir, the 125,000 gallon steel auxiliary tank and the modern pumping and aerating facilities will be serving purest, most delicious water to the residents of this homeland. All the work is being done according to the specifications of the Southeastern Underwriters' Association, so that those living here will have advantage of the lowest insurance rates and the fire risk will be reduced to a minimum.

The gigantic sea wall is rising—eight feet in height and four feet thick at the base, of the most modern reinforced concrete construction.

Many new homes are being built, many more are being planned to enjoy the opportunities offered by our home financing plan—and the setting in which they stand is being daily made more beautiful by the profuse planting of every variety of tropical plant and flower. Palms, crepe myrtle, Australian pine, hibiscus, bougainvillea and every other variety of foliage have been received and are being nurtured to ripe maturity in the nursery—available for every appropriate spot in this modern wonderland.

Visit this beauty spot—see it for yourself—a call to any of our offices will secure a trip in one of our private cars or palatial pullman buses.

AN EXCELLENT BILL.

In a recent issue The Constitution discussed in detail the new Colorado motor vehicle title law which went into effect July 15.

The Guess bill, which has already passed the Georgia senate, is very similar to the Colorado law in all basic essentials, and is in fact an improvement on it in some of the main details, as it was drawn specifically for conditions in Georgia and to harmonize with our code of laws.

The Guess bill, which will be before the house this week, is one that vitally affects the liberty and the property of more than two hundred and fifty thousand owners of motor vehicles and the interests of the dealers and underwriters of automobile insurance in Georgia.

The care in the preparation of this bill has been commensurate with the importance of its subject matter.

This bill, in its making, had the personal thought of the five members of the Georgia public service commission, the attorney general, the state tax commissioner, the chairman of the highway commission, the state auditor, two judges of the court of appeals, the solicitor general of Fulton county superior court and the chairman of the board of county commissioners of Fulton county. These fifteen men of ability and experience have recommended this legislation.

The two principal provisions are: First, the protection of the liberty of honest motorists; second, the protection of the licensed property of the owner of motor vehicles.

The liberty of an honest motorist is preserved by giving him a certificate of registration whereby he can at any time, in any place, identify himself as the rightful owner of the car in his possession.

The protection of property is effected by the recording of the certificate with the clerk of the superior court in the county where the owner lives, who certifies to said record upon certificate, which then becomes an evidence of title.

The title to a motor vehicle which has been registered with the secretary of state and the certificate of registration recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court cannot be transferred legally except by executing the transfer on reverse side of certificate of registration and having said transfer duly recorded. This makes easy the transfer of title by the owner of car and also makes impossible the legal transfer or sale by anyone else, the transfer or sale of motor vehicles being effected in the same manner as corporation stocks such as bank, railroad, factory, or other corporations.

The bill puts upon the secretary of state the duty of furnishing, with each auto license number, a certificate of registration without any cost to the owners of motor vehicles. It requires owners of cars to record this certificate of registration with the clerk of superior court in the county where owner of motor vehicle lives and the payment by him of a fee of 15 cents.

It is a measure that should be enacted into law, and it is hoped the house will pass it and send it on to the governor at the earliest possible moment.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

Atlanta was honored Monday by four visiting governors from as many sister states of the south. Distinguished representatives of several other southern governors were among the group of visitors.

The governors visiting Atlanta were Martin, of Florida; Brandon, of Alabama; McLeod, of South Carolina; and Whitfield, of Mississippi.

These distinguished guests were in conference with officials of the Stone Mountain Memorial association, looking to a concerted and vigorous all-south movement this fall for the sale of the memorial coins, in order that the work of completing the great Confederate memorial, under the revised plan, may proceed with the utmost possible speed.

Atlanta was proud to have within her gates such a group of executives, and others notable in the achievements of their respective states. The welcome extended was the proverbial Georgia welcome that is closely welded with an equally proverbial Atlanta hospitality.

It is gratifying and heartening that the entire south stands so unitedly behind the wonderful conception of an everlasting monument to the valor and intrepid heroism of the Confederate soldier.

"ALL-ATLANTA NIGHT."

This is the last week of summer opera—and this is "All-Atlanta night."

Atlanta appreciates the splendid work of the directors of the municipal light opera in giving to the public such a clean, enjoyable and cultural series of amusements as presented at the Auditorium the past five weeks.

It seems almost incredible that during its first season any city would gather together a company of artists who have so wonderfully interpreted some of the splendid comic operas as we have had the pleasure of witnessing.

Only because this is a non-profit organization designed by a group of public-spirited citizens to help Atlanta and because these men have given generously not only of their time, but their money as well, has it been possible.

The directors of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce in session felt that the Atlanta public does not thoroughly comprehend or appreciate all that municipal light opera means to Atlanta, and therefore suggested that Tuesday night, July 21, be designated as "All-Atlanta Night" and that the members of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce and women's division give a tangible expression of their good will towards this notable enterprise by making it a point to be present at tonight's performance, if possible, with their wives or their sweethearts and the members of their families; and further, that others of our public-spirited citizens take this opportunity to extend to certain or all of their employees, if it be possible, complimentary seats to this performance. The suggestion is a good one and The Constitution heartily commends it.

We want to continue light opera in Atlanta another season and we can do so if, in this closing week, a more definite and tangible expression of our desire is made known to the directors of the municipal light opera by filling the Auditorium to capacity at least one night during the last week.

CHILD LABOR BILL.

The child labor bill which will be considered by the house Tuesday has been drawn with a great deal of care and has the unanimous approval of the committee. It should pass.

No man in Georgia has given more thought to legislation of this nature, not only for Georgia, but as proposed for Georgia in comparison with other states, than Commissioner Hal M. Stanley, of the state department of commerce and labor. In a letter to The Constitution Mr. Stanley says:

"Some question has arisen about the constitutionality of the bill, which I think is not justified by facts. With reference to hazardous employment I took care to set it now exists in Alabama, which I think is a mighty good one. Instead of providing that a child under 16 shall not work around a printing office we simply say he shall not run a job or cylinder press and provides prohibition for other like machines, but does not bar him from employment by these various concerns in other forms of endeavor. I believe it is much better to do that than to bar him from any of the avenues of employment around a sawmill, planers, printing offices, laundries, etc., because there are many things he can do there which are in no wise hazardous."

The Constitution opposed the federal child labor amendment. In expressing more than once, its opposition to that measure it said the Georgia law needed amending—and it does. The bill before the assembly has the approval of manufacturers, welfare workers, the state department of commerce and labor, woman's organizations—almost everybody.

Georgia has been severely and most unjustly criticized in connection with child labor. The bill pending, if passed, will disarm such critics, and place Georgia in a most enviable and satisfactory position in this connection.

TIRE ADVANCES ARE ANNOUNCED

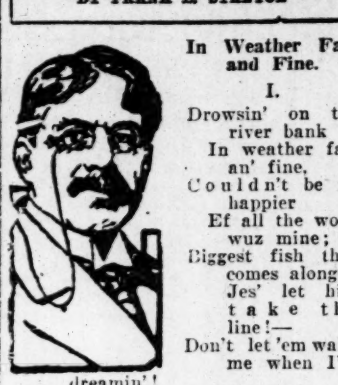

New York, July 20.—Continued rise in crude rubber prices resulted Monday in additional increases in tire and tube prices. Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and the Converse Rubber Shoe company announced advances of from 10 to 15 per cent.

The local crude rubber market was firm around $12.25. Six months ago the raw material could be obtained at 20 cents. Selom, even in a commodity where prices fluctuate regularly and extensively, has such a spectacular advance occurred.

Tire manufacturers now are able to use up-grade stocks, and hence their advances are not paralleled by the spurring increases in crude rubber. As to the limit of their supplies of cheap rubber, however, there is considerable speculation.

Postal Tariffs Proving Costly Probe Body Told

Washington, July 20.—(AP)—The special congressional postal commission, reopening the postal rate controversy today, heard criticism of some of the new tariffs made effective last April and received a proposal for a one-cent postage on drop letters.

Postmaster General New, the first witness at the opening session of hearings which will take the commission to score of cities in the next few weeks, frankly told the senators and representatives that it was too early for the postoffice department to make any accurate estimate of the effect of the new rates on postal revenue.

Presenting figures to show a slight decrease in revenue for May as compared to the estimate of what the revenue would have been for the month under the old rates, Mr. New declared he would not say that the postoffice department was disappointed in the outcome of the new rates.

He forecast a substantial increase from the two cents special charge on parcel post packages, but said strong protests had been received against the increase in the postage rates on newspapers mailed by individuals and that indications pointed to a falling off of revenue from that source.

The one-half cent increase in the rate on private mailing cards also promises to prove costly to the government, the commission was told, because many private concerns are turning to the use of the government cards which go through the mails at one cent each.

Summarizing letters received from postmasters in a number of the large cities, Mr. New asserted "the changes in the rates of postage on copies of newspapers and periodicals when mailed by publishers or regularly by news agents have been well accepted by the majority of the publishers."

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1925.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, July 20.—There was a time when ragtime, pink teas and turkey-trots were new and ultra devilish. And in these night clubs of today may still be found scantly-dressed damsels who sing songs with double-meaning words and pat coolly on the heads of their bald spots. In the Great White Way is just as white and just as gay as 15 years ago, though calamity howlers on the one hand say it's getting wicked and others proclaim it's getting fatter.

Allan Dwan who made a study of the whole subject of Broadway jazz coops from its infancy to its present state, says that as he watches the high jinks being linked and exclusive retreats where no names are mentioned except at the heavily-barred front door, he can't help feeling that the world is still going round the same old way and that w today's younger set thinks is new and ultra devilish is just a different twist on the same old story.

The facts haven't changed a great deal though the terms have. The cabaret of yesterday is the supper show of today and the old cafe is now a night club. That's the difference. There's little changed.

For other references ask dad—he knows. Broadway meanderings: Zoe Beckley, who interviewed the queen of Tumania and persuaded that lady to write her life story (though I'm doubtful if it took much coaxing) has gone to England to spend a holiday with the same queen, who is having a vacation in that country. Rich days. Guy Van and Joe Schenck, the popular comedians, were once motor-man and conductor on a trolley car, their harmonizing on late runs drew the attention of some looking agent.

An old-fashioned lady, wearing an old-fashioned bonnet came running along Second avenue screaming wildly about thieves and robbers. When she had quieted down enough to tell her story to the police and some bystanders it was revealed that she kept her money in an old-fashioned coffee pot and that one of her boarders had discovered the hiding place, which makes it an old-fashioned story.

Some people seem to develop a positive passion for confidences in Pullman cars—an embarrassing but amusing trait. Some persons delight in telling you the history of their lives—and especially of their most

The interviewer also discovered that Herr Hindenburg was "well versed in contemporary politics and events of world culture." What did he expect, anyway? Did the venture of a thousand miles perhaps end with the idea that he was going to seek a tete a tete with the savage chief of a band of New Guinea savages? Or was he expecting to find him as a head of one of the nations that has led the world in culture, scientific attainment and progress. Such a person would be a wonder indeed.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

France in Africa.
The French royalist group in parliament has proposed the plan to bomb the Rif tribes into submission with the use of poison gas. Of course the gentlemen admit that the use of poison gas is contrary to the rights of human beings and is inhuman. An exception ought to be made where "it concerns the imposition of a higher civilization on a half-savage people." In other words, the end justifies the means.

Has France really been the great civilizing force in Africa that she claims to be? Was it because of human values that French troops penetrated deep into the Sahara and Congo regions? Or was it for other reasons such as rubber and oil and man-power? In a book called "Boulton," written by a negro, French civilization is held up as the most treacherous force that the blacks of Africa have known.

The writer maintains that the colonial peoples have degenerated and have learned the white man's vices. Instead of working for human values, the French have been sipping absinthe. They maltreat their women and ape the white man's vices. And all the world knows that a white man's vice is a tropical ailment. The writer makes these conditions must also be examined when France boasts of railway lines, plantations, mines and educational facilities in North Africa.

TUSKEGEE ENDOWMENT REACHES $4,500,000

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Another pledge to the Hampton-Tuskegee endowment fund was fulfilled last week when Senator J. Coleman DuPont paid $250,000. Clarence H. Kelly, chairman of the fund, announced today. Earlier in the week announcement was made of the payment of a $1,000,000 pledge by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Mr. Kelly said that the fund now exceeds $4,500,000. The goal is $5,000,000. The fund was established in 1912 to qualify for a $2,000,000 gift of George Eastman.

Thank God, a monument commemorating their loyalty and valor and sacrifices is now being planned on the site of the old fort. A monument which will endure as long as the hills.

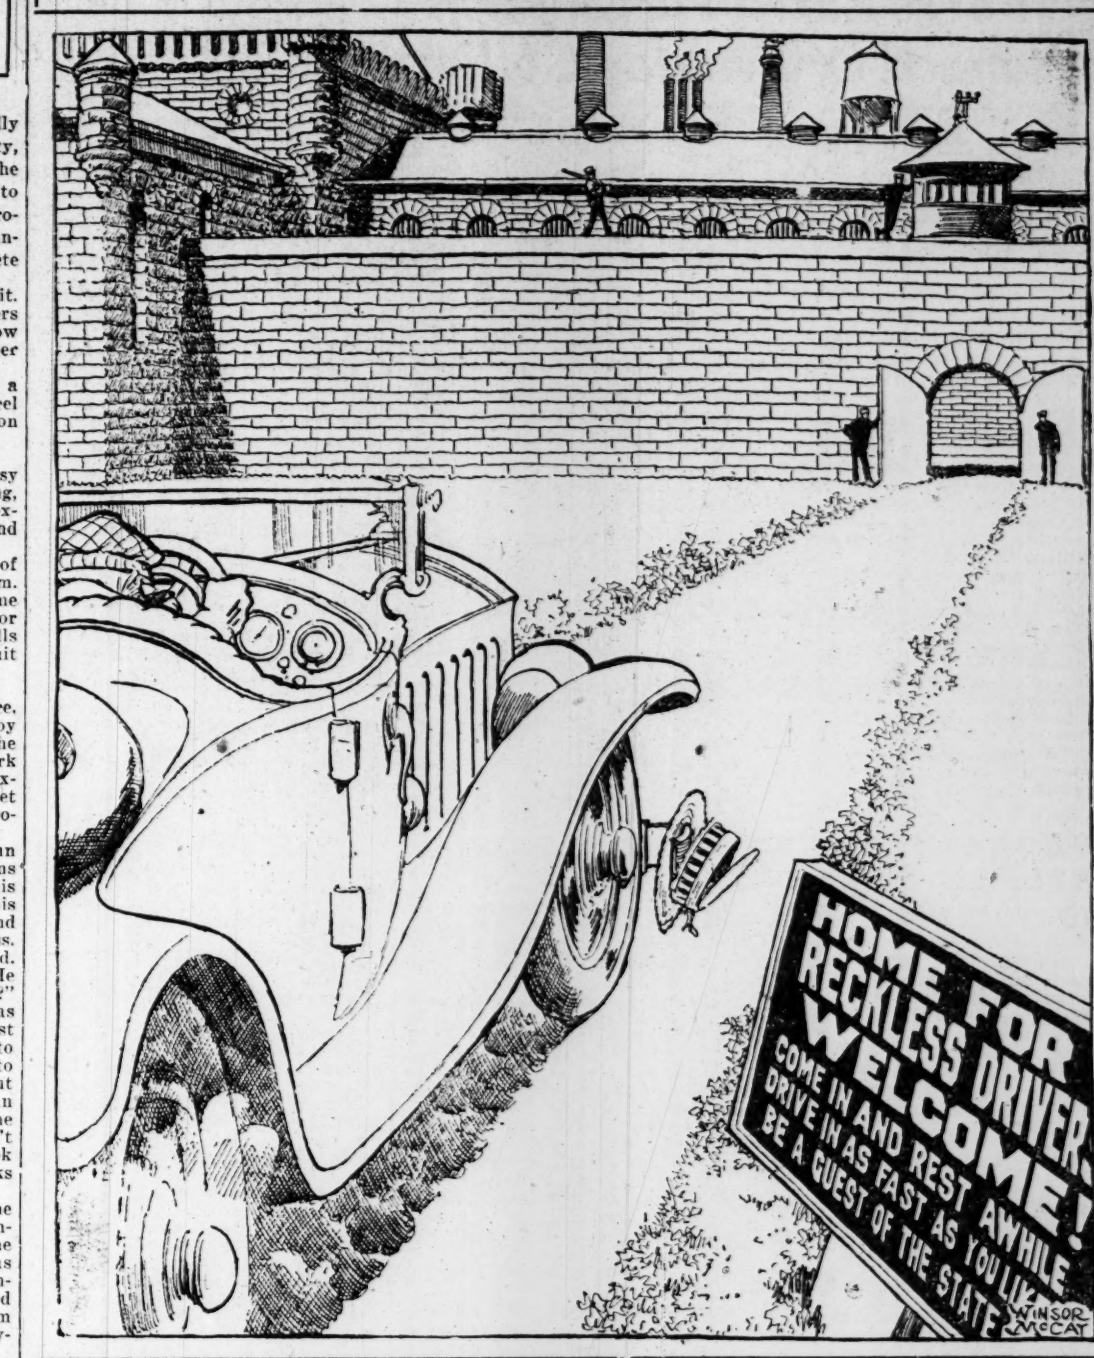

This is perhaps a digression as the question suggested is the fiscal policy or lack of policy of the state. That question summed up is, what is the first duty of the state? What is the paramount question? What the remedy? It is not economy. That would be a drop in the bucket. It is a revenue by a system of taxation which shall reach all property. Such measure put into effect will not increase taxation, yet will probably double the state's revenue, and at the same time will relieve and do justice to that large class of citizenry who have for so many years carried the burden of state, while others shirked and dodged.

Another Badly Needed Road

Prominent Georgian Writes Pointedly Of Pending Issues

Editor Constitution: That was a timely editorial in your issue of July 10, the heading of which, "The Gasoline Tax Only for Highways," carried a statement that at once appealed to reason. And most people will agree, too, that "it will be a serious mistake and a dangerous precedent to divert a gasoline tax or any part of it to any service of government other than road building and maintenance."

In the course of the editorial you state there is no stronger appeal before the legislature today than for schools. It is strong but there is a stronger appeal to the legislature, an appeal to the state to do justice and practice honesty towards its afflicted and weak citizens who cannot protect themselves.

It is known that the state's manufactory for the insane at Milledgeville is, and has been, compelled to close its protecting doors to the inmates because of the violence of the inmates who are violent and dangerous; thereby compelling the larger number of very poor people unable to care for their afflicted kindred, to consign them to jails and poor farms where they cannot receive humane attention, or curative treatment. The asylum at Milledgeville is equipped with an able corps of specialists and attendants. But, for lack of money, cannot provide for all needing treatment.

This lack of provision by the state is so cruel to some of its citizens and is so neglectful in a state boasting of prosperity that some of us wonder whether we are in an era of civilization or not. Such government actions, contempt, and, and is the plight of a state whose citizens fail to respect it.

Does not that shameful condition appeal for correction and relief? Next comes a question of honesty. On the statute books of Georgia there is and has been for some years an express acknowledgment of indebtedness to the state soldier—small it is true, only an extra stipend of $25 a year, an increase of the regular pension as the soldiers were dying off and their number growing less. Does the state pay that fixed amount? No. It does not. It not only fails to pay it but adopts by neglect and dilatory practices, delay making provision to pay it, till the poor old soldier dies, and that pays the debt, and they are doing fast—more ranks are fast becoming thinner and thinner—fewer and fewer.

I dare say there is no other state in Christendom that delays paying a certain weekly and yearly pension to its soldiers. It acknowledges it due each of them, delay payment till he dies, and then cancels the debt. In order to verify this unbelievable fact I made inquiry of our worthy State Pension Commission General Clark, who on July 2 answered, saying:

"If a pensioner dies in the pension year without drawing the $25 and leaves no widow, this fund cannot be used for funeral expenses, and the money must be returned to the treasury."

That is to say, the state by delaying payment, which it has been doing for the last five years, except one year, makes $25,000 for every thousand deaths, by turning back into the treasury money held up from payment and of which the poor man was deprived and, in most cases, sorely needed in his life-time.

The old soldiers are passing over the river, but leave behind sons and daughters, and grandsons and grand-daughters. Let them not forget.

These soldiers were volunteers who protected life and clothed themselves and received no pay, but served without murmur or complaint.

Thank God, a monument commemorating their loyalty and valor and sacrifices is now being planned on the site of the old fort. A monument which will endure as long as the hills.

This is perhaps a digression as the question suggested is the fiscal policy or lack of policy of the state. That question summed up is, what is the first duty of the state? What is the paramount question? What the remedy? It is not economy. That would be a drop in the bucket. It is a revenue by a system of taxation which shall reach all property. HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

OUR OCCULT POSSESSIONS.

Most of us assume we are pretty sound, maybe a few minor functional disturbances but no organic trouble, until we are disillusioned perhaps by a life insurance examination or a voluntary or involuntary health examination.

In the autumn of 1924, 1,224 men students of the average age of 19 years were given complete physical examinations by the medical officers at the University of California, and the examination included complete chemical and X-rayoscopic urine examinations. Fifty-one of the students were found to have abnormal urine specimens; thus 34 of these abnormal specimens showed a slight trace of albumin, 17 showed a moderate trace of albumin, 3 showed sugar, 21 showed mucus, 17 showed pus cells, four showed red blood cells, four showed granular casts, and six showed hyaline casts.

In the majority of instances the specimens showing a slight trace of albumin, on further study of the men concerned, were found to be physiologic, the faint trace of albumin being due to a shower bath preceding the examination or to excitement of the examination. The albumin was absent on subsequent tests.

Of the six with decided traces of albumin, with or without casts, two were found to have nephritis (chronic Bright's disease) and one had a history of eruptive fevers (which may have left the kidneys damaged).

In three cases with red blood corpuscles and white (pus) cells in the urine, two proved to be tuberculosis of the kidney and one in the kidney. The diagnoses in these three cases were confirmed by X-ray pictures, cystoscopic examination and (in the tuberculosis cases) by animal inoculation.

In reporting these interesting and instructive observations of the health condition of what would seem to be the very healthiest class of men one could select, Dr. Robert T. Legge remarks: "The point to be made is that, with the exception of one case, none of these students realized that he possessed any kidney or bladder lesions—a rather eloquent argument as to the value of routine urine examinations. It is labor worth while, for the reward is so satisfactory, since chronic destructive pathological changes are prevented, which ordinarily are determined only when constitutional symptoms are present, and when therapy offers little prospects of alleviation."

Of course Dr. Legge does not refer to the fact that many of the students with these possessions except to mention that the patients that needed surgical treatment were referred for operation, and the remainder were treated medically.

When 4.2 per cent of such a group of young men have such occult possessions, the chances are that a much greater proportion of us, or fellows would learn from a careful health examination that we are owners of pathological lesions of which we are unaware.

This idea of a proprietary interest in one's hidden ailments is novel, something like catching a tumor, and yet we have a common belief that a man owns his own kidneys surely and they're still his even though they be damaged by disease.

Bochum, Germany, July 20.—(AP)—The French evacuation of the town in the heart of the Ruhr was completed today. Hattingen and Witten were also evacuated. All French and Belgian troops are expected to be out of the zones they have occupied in Westphalia late tonight and the entire Ruhr will be cleared of allied troops by July 31.

four years as college students. It is plain to all those who are close observers of the present-day working of our college system, that the four years of college is a deplorable condition and a waste of money to be made to produce better results as regards intellectual progress and fitness for life in the world at large. But the colleges show no sign of languishing and doubtless they will find ways to give better and more definite individual training.

The tax laws have to undergo a radical change in order to be efficient and equitable. What is striking is the fact that those who oppose any change propose no measure that may bring about a deplorable condition in a new condition. It has prevailed for more than a decade and it has become worse as long as it continues. It is a fiscal system that is in a state of decay and it is a man who understands it wonders that a man suffering people have never revolted against it.

Scrip Bill Regarded Entirely Constitutional

Editor Constitution: The "scrip bill" paying the Confederate pension has unanimously passed the senate, and the constitutionality of the act is unquestioned. This scrip bill is not to appropriate new money to pay the old Confederates but simply to pay what is past due to them. The attorney general of Georgia and the ablest lawyers tell us it is constitutional.

DR. C. L. MOORE, Chairman State Confederate Veterans, was brought to Georgia by the scrip bill. It is a "capital levy tax" levied on the state's property, and is a "capital levy tax" levied on the state's property, and is a "capital levy tax" levied on the state's property.

Commander Camp Hardee Confederate Veterans, Warren County, Atlanta, Ga., July 20, 1925.

Former Legislator Favors A Classified Tax System

Editor Constitution: Taxation is the question most vital to the business interests of all the people of the state now before the Georgia legislature. The people are looking to the newspapers for light on the tax question as on all other public issues. A constructive program is needed. The uniform ad valorem tax system of Georgia is not the tax system of our fathers, but was brought to Georgia by the scrip bill. It is a "capital levy tax" levied on the state's property, and is a "capital levy tax" levied on the state's property.

which our fathers had for 145 years, under which Georgia made more progress in agricultural and industrial development than any other southern state, and won the title of Empire State of the South, which she has since lost under the present tax system, before there can be permanent prosperity in Georgia again.

GEORGIA—

---the glorious state!

This year Georgia's tobacco crop probably will exceed $15,000,000 and the grade is expected to be of the highest. Buyers already are arriving in many south Georgia tobacco markets, Douglas, Ashburn, Tifton, Fitzgerald, Blackshear, Dublin and other points. Buyers attend the auction sales each year from many foreign countries, and in this sales method highest prices are obtainable. Georgia's crop consists of two to three million acres of crop in North also weeks in advance of crops in North Carolina and Kentucky.

STOCKS CONTINUE TO ADVANCE RAILROADS

13 HIGHWAY ZONES DECATUR TRADE BOARD WILL MEET TONIGHT

Bills providing for construction of hard surface highways in all sections of Georgia through a system of highway bond zones were introduced in the House Monday by the Chairman's delegation. The proposals are embraced in three companion measures which divide the state into 13 trunk line zones and authorize the counties in each to issue bonds that would total $26,450,000 for the entire state.

The bills also provide that all revenue from the motor vehicle license department and the state tax on gasoline shall be used for road building and it is estimated that during the time required to build the roads projected, the total raised including the bond issues, would be more than $100,000,000.

Bond Commission.

In each of the 13 zones a bond commission with from 15 to 20 members is to be named by the tax collecting authorities of each county in the zone. Members are to be paid at the rate of $10 a day for their services, but no member is to receive more than $100 a year.

Simultaneously with introduction of the bills in the house duplicate bills were introduced in the senate by Senator Morgan, of the first district.

The coastal highway for which a special bond issue already has been voted would be completed first under provisions of the new bills.

In addition to the main trunk highways in the 13 zones provision also is made for construction of important branch roads and lateral lines running to principal cities in the state.

13 Highway Zones. The 13 zones with the amount of bond issue authorized total cost of the roads to be built in each are defined as follows:

Zone No. 1, Savannah to Cass station, estimated to cost $10,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,000,000.

Zone No. 2, from Rome to Macon, estimated to cost $11,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,100,000.

Zone No. 3, from Macon to Columbus, estimated to cost $12,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,200,000.

Zone No. 4, from Columbus to Atlanta, estimated to cost $13,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,300,000.

Zone No. 5, from Atlanta to Decatur, estimated to cost $14,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,400,000.

Zone No. 6, from Decatur to Macon, estimated to cost $15,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,500,000.

Zone No. 7, from Macon to Savannah, estimated to cost $16,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,600,000.

Zone No. 8, from Savannah to Jacksonville, estimated to cost $17,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,700,000.

Zone No. 10, from Miami to Tampa, estimated to cost $19,000,000, with a bond issue of $1,900,000.

Zone No. 11, from Tampa to Orlando, estimated to cost $20,000,000, with a bond issue of $2,000,000.

New York, July 20.—Because of high temperature and an absence of rain, the attention of cotton traders again was fixed upon Texas today and whatever stabilizes the market displayed was largely due to this influence.

Opening firm at 8 to 14 points advance, it received support from Liverpool. New Orleans advanced 10 to 15 points, but reacted and was barely steady at the close with prices 5 points lower to 1 higher. Much of the selling throughout the day was based on predictions by local students of the weather map that barometric conditions in the southwest pointed to showers in Texas.

Elsewhere in the cotton market, however, such predictions were at variance with the official weather forecast which gave no hope of relief in Texas. Elsewhere in the cotton market, however, such predictions were at variance with the official weather forecast which gave no hope of relief in Texas.

Several private reports, issued during the day, estimated a condition of the crop at 7.4 and a crop from 14,197,000 to 14,300,000 bales. One private crop estimate was as low as 13,095,000 bales. The average estimate was 14,200,000 bales.

BEHIND THE SCENES In the Business World

By John T. Flynn

New York, July 20.—At this moment when forecasts of crops are playing so important a part in our immediate business prospects and plans, many assertions about the world's wheat crop are being made. One of them is that the wheat crop of the world as a whole will be very large and the other is that our own wheat crop will be below normal.

Now we know how the figures of our own wheat crop are arrived at through the machinery of the department of agriculture. But how do we get the estimates of the wheat crop of the world? Those immediately connected with the business know that it comes from Rome. And why from Rome? Well, the wheat crop of the world is estimated from the wheat crop of Italy.

The estimates come from Rome from the international institute of agriculture. What I am writing here is not a story, but a story of the kind that asks me what this institute at Rome is. We frequently see brief dispatches in print giving its reports. This is an institute established and maintained by a large number of nations, including the United States, as a clearing house for information about the world's wheat crop.

It was established in Italy because the Italian government has the most complete records of its wheat crop. It was suggested by an American, but was established in Italy because the Italian government has the most complete records of its wheat crop.

FIGHT INTERRUPTS MINE CONVENTION

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 20.—George Isaacs, vice president of District No. 1 of the United Mine Workers of America, was painfully beaten and several other workers' representatives were injured Monday when factional differences precipitated a small riot at the District No. 1 convention.

Police reserves were required to quell the disturbance. While spokesmen for the anthracite miners at Atlantic City were attempting to back up their demands of operators with a solid front, smouldering friction in the organization burst into flame here when an effort was made to submit the report of the credentials committee.

On the report of the committee hinged the question of whether District President Rinaldo Cappellini or the opposing forces would control the convention. William J. Brennan, of Scranton, who was defeated by Cappellini in the last election, demanded to know whether the report was signed by the district auditors. The question was immediately ruled out of order by Cappellini.

James Hennihan, one of Brennan's backers, jumped to his feet and fired the same question at the chair. He was told to sit down, but refused. Several delegates attempted to push him into his seat.

In a moment fists were flying all over the room. Isaacs rushed down from the platform to preserve order but was attacked by both factions. Police were summoned but before they arrived, Isaacs was so badly beaten that he was unable to leave the Y. M. C. A. building, where the convention was meeting, without assistance. Nearly a dozen others showed battle scars in the form of swollen eyes and bruised bodies.

ure, supporters of the viaducts plan claimed.

Greatly encouraged by Monday night's victory in committee, supporters of the viaducts resolution plan to have the house bill called up for third reading and passage in the senate today. They expressed confidence that the resolution would pass the senate with a good majority.

Discussion of the viaducts matter probably will occupy the entire session today. A minority report had been filed by Senator Knight on the senate resolution, but as a unanimous vote was given the house resolution Monday night, action on the house measure will be considerably speeded up.

MUNICIPAL OPERA COMPANY AT BEST of her work at the auditorium for the past six weeks.

And Louise Wright, another of the trio of sopranos, again scores tremendously as "Marie," the leader of the "White Gossies."

Anne Yago fills a character role once more—and sings divinely in her solo number, the "Irish Love Song."

Thomas Conkey Pleas.

Thomas Conkey, the romantic baritone, has again the type of character he seems to have been molded to fit. The air to the throne, you know, who loves the simple—but lovely, lovely, lovely.

Dudley Marwick and Charles Schenk have two excellent comedy roles, with William McLeod again featured in a "silly ass" Englishman type.

Robert Pitkin, the indefatigable comedian, follows his customary program of extracting every ounce of humor out of his part. He is the comedy villain, who holds the secret to the real pantomime of the heroine—a part which, by the exigencies of the plot, requires him to work as a laundress and chase soap all over the stage.

George Meader, the tenor, again demonstrates the range of his splendid voice, and Richard Bennett and Leonard White fill two small roles satisfactorily.

Special attention must be paid to the half dozen "let number" songs as the "White Gossies" contributed a lot to the success of the performance. They were exceptionally important in the song with Miss Hunter, Mother Goose, and the number with Miss Dunne, "Wooden Shoes," in the first act, and with Mr. Meader in "Game of Love," in the last act.

And you must not forget to reserve a lot of your applause for the comedy "Monks' Quartet," near the close of the second act, sung by Pitkin, Marwick, Schenk and McLeod.

All in all, "Sweethearts" was an excellent selection for the final opera on the list, because it will leave an excellent taste on the musical palates of Atlanta and make the appetite for light opera compelling when next summer rolls around.

And, if the coals are sufficiently benevolent, let us pray that when light opera does come back, it brings back to us Louise Hunter.

GERMANS TO AID SECURITY PLANS

day. It is briefer than the French note to which it replied.

Willing to Enter League.

"With the exception of the communists and the nationalists, Germany has an intention to enter the era of negotiations and arrive at a satisfactory settlement," a high French authority declared following the conference. "The negotiations will begin at once."

The principal reservation set forth in the note concerns article 16 of the league of nations, which deals with military obligations of member states.

"Germany seems willing to enter the league," the French spokesman continued, "although it is not known whether negotiations to that end can be completed before the league assembly meeting of next September."

Great importance is attached to the German ambassador's statement to Brandt that the reich had decided to carry out the allies' latest note regarding disarmament.

McINTYRE'S DEATH LAID TO RUM FEUD had told several people he was going to kill me on sight.

"Now, that is the truth, so help me God."

Nichols also told the officers, they said, that he had trouble with McIntyre Saturday night when he said he fired a shot at McIntyre as the latter advanced on him with a knife. He said McIntyre apparently was under the influence of a narcotic at that time. He said after this occurrence a woman friend brought him word that McIntyre had threatened to shoot him on sight.

Claims Self-Defense.

Monday, according to Nichols, he was seated in an automobile belonging to Poole with the others under arrest. McIntyre, he said, drove behind the automobile, and, parking, left the car and started around the Poole automobile. A bystander, he said, shouted a warning, "Look out, he's going to cut you," and then, he said, he fired.

McIntyre turned at the first shot and tried to flee into the apartment house which stands at the Ivy street address, but tumbled from the steps as a second shot pierced his heart and a third entered his head. A fourth shot went wild as C. L. Nichols, who was driving, started the motor and the automobile raced from the scene.

Policeman Charlie Hajos quickly traced it to a house on Central avenue and placed Leon Nichols under arrest.

Y. B. Bentley, a University of Georgia student, who lives on Peachtree road, was passing at the time of the shooting. He carried McIntyre to Grady hospital, but the man was dead when the car reached there. The body was taken to the Blanchard-Gartrell undertaking rooms.

Result of Feud.

After questioning Leon Nichols, Captain Holcombe said he believed the affair was the result of a liquor feud. His men had found, he said, that McIntyre and Nichols both came from Birmingham about a week ago and had made a trip to north Georgia. This, he said, was the last time McIntyre was seen in Atlanta, but McIntyre said $20 was still due him. This, he said, led to a bitter feud between the men, who both are well known to police. He has directed officers working on the case to trace a report that Nichols fired at McIntyre last Saturday night.

In addition to Policemen Hajos and Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant, the following men have been assigned to the case: T. J. Harrison, Lou W. Evans and J. C. Davis.

No inquest will be held because there were eyewitnesses to the shooting.

Captain Holcombe will try to have the four men arraigned in police court today.

Efforts of police to find the local address of McIntyre or to locate any relatives in the city were unavailing late Monday night. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Blanchard-Gartrell.

FIVE-DAY NOTICE WINS BIG VICTORY

part of the man, and chastity on the part of the woman."

He was followed by Mr. Hunnicutt, who declared that the law, in the matter of fees, worked a greater hardship on married couples than on single persons. Without the present law, he said, "petting parties result in hasty marriages and early divorces."

Mrs. E. K. Rabe, representing the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, expressed hope that the law might be made more stringent rather than less strict.

The women of Atlanta and of Georgia, she said, regard the law as one of the best ever put on the statute books, and hoped that it will not be repealed or modified.

Curb on Divorces.

Dr. Marvin Williams, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, appeared as a representative of the Atlanta Evangelical Ministers' association. He predicted that at the present rate, in 50 years every marriage would end in divorce. The biggest percentage of the marriages ending in divorce, he stated, were hasty marriages. Instances of "tragedies" which, he said, had been averted through the new marriage law were mentioned by the speaker.

R. M. McFarland, Jr., representing the Atlanta Christian Endeavor union, declared that the majority of young people did not want the law repealed.

A measure by Representative Davis, of DeKalb, which seeks to prevent marriage between whites and those having "any ascertainable trace of negro, Chinese or Japanese blood in their veins," was given a favorable report by the committee.

Registration and Certification.

Under the present law, Mr. Davis said, a person is not considered by the law as a "person of color" if he has seven-eighths white. The measure seeks by means of registration and certification to prevent marriages of members of the white race to persons who have any trace of other than white blood.

Two other bills were given favorable votes by the committee. One would empower public service companies to sell or lease their property to concerns doing the same kind of business. The other permits condemnation proceedings to acquire water-power property privately owned.

Baptists Oppose Bills.

The Baptist Ministers' Association of Atlanta went on record Monday morning as opposing three bills now pending in the general assembly. Resolutions were passed opposing the measure to repeal the law requiring notice of marriages to be posted five days before the license is issued; another opposing the law to make arresting officers wear a badge at least five inches in diameter; and a third in regard to a bill repealing the present law which makes the evidence of an arresting officer, obtained in an illegal manner, inadmissible to a crime other than that for which the arrest was made.

The Douglasville Methodist church took similar action in regard to the three bills and Mr. Dorris, of the house, and Mr. Hutcheson, of the senate, were requested to oppose the bills.

PASTOR SCORES PLAN TO ALTER MARRIAGES

side of his bride and place him in jail merely because he lied about his age.

"What we are concerned with—and every man, woman and child in Georgia is vitally concerned, I can assure you—is to see that marriages are consummated on a sane basis. It's far better to stop unwise marriages than to try to undo them; and if we succeed we will have done more to curb the menace of divorce—which strikes at every American home—than has ever been done before."

Protection For All.

"I know of a case in Georgia where a young teacher met a man and, after a hurried courtship, they applied for a marriage license. The ordinary explanation that five-day publication of banns was necessary, but the man went to the parents of the girl and asked their written consent to immediate marriage. They refused; so the five-day notice was posted with the ordinary. On the fifth day, the girl received a letter from a woman in Alabama to the effect that the man was already married to her."

"So you see the present law does more than protect mere children; it safeguards in great measure every woman from the crook and the bigamist. It gives all time for mature consideration, and it most certainly is the best law that has been written on Georgia statute books for a long year."

Dr. Hunnicutt then cited the fact that in Fulton and DeKalb counties alone, a total of 150 applications for licenses have been filed by persons who never returned at the end of the required five days to get them.

Scores Opposition.

He added that the ministers are interested in maintaining the present law solely through altruistic motives, citing the fact that any law which tends to decrease the number of marriages taken from their pockets.

"We are only too glad to forfeit these fees," he said, "because we realize that we are saving men and women from suffering, and their children from disgrace."

"Opposition to the five-day notice bill," he continued, "comes almost entirely from ordinaries of about 15 or 20 border counties who have lost their fees because young couples in their counties go over the state line to be married. I do not hesitate to brand this as an attempt to commercialize on an evil, and it is my fondest hope—and the fondest hope of ministers and all thinking people—that the house of representatives will decline to be guided by the recommendations of this committee."

FIRE DEPARTMENT ASKS FOR FUNDS TO BUY EQUIPMENT

A new 1,000-gallon triple compression pumper, similar to the Athens-Fox machine recently purchased, and an 8-foot aerial truck for use in the fire department was asked Monday in a request presented to city council by the fire committee.

The paper was referred to the finance committee for consideration and it is expected that money for the two new machines will be set aside in the January apportionment sheet.

According to the request, the pumper would not cost more than $13,500 and the truck not more than $16,500.

COUNCIL APPROVES PURCHASE OF LAND BY SCHOOL BOARD

The board of education Monday was authorized by council to purchase land near Ormewood and Stewart avenue schools. The school board already has completed negotiations and needed only approval of council to bind the deals.

The Stewart avenue property will cost $15,000, and includes nine lots adjoining the present school property. Additional land near both schools was necessary to provide proper playgrounds and for expansion of the plants, it was stated.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY TRAINING SCHOOL IS VOTED $1,287

Enlargement of Atlanta's Carnegie library training school was practically assured Monday when city council voted $1,287 for the school. The Carnegie foundation previously had agreed to increase its annual donation from $4,500 to $7,500, contingent on council's giving the requested appropriation.

The school is used in training young women desirous of taking up library work and is one of the two schools of its kind in the country.

PAYMENT HELD UP FOR NEW SIDEWALK ON GORDON TERRACE

Acting on information that a sidewalk on Gordon terrace between Gordon and West streets was not laid in accordance with specifications, city council Monday afternoon voted to hold up all payments for the work.

Instead of being four inches thick, in accordance with the contract, the walk is only three inches, according to information given the street committee. At that time, the contractor agreed to settle for half his original price, and an ordinance was passed by council reducing the assessments on property owners by 50 per cent, and cutting the contractor's bill accordingly.

However, the aldermanic board voted a non-concurrence, and by filing the aldermen's action, council Monday held up all payments pending further action.

INSLEY EXCAVATOR VETO SUSTAINED BY CITY COUNCIL

City council Monday sustained Mayor Walter A. Sims' veto of an appropriation of $5,500 for purchase of an Insley excavator—a trench-digging machine for the sewer department. It was explained that the disapproval was based on the fact that the bond commission had not approved the purchase.

Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, chairman of the sewer committee of council, announced that he would take the matter to the bond commission, and its passage is expected after going through the proper channels.

that creation of the new county would cut off a rich portion of agricultural sections from Twigg and Wilkinson counties.

Those favoring the bill urged its passage in behalf of development and progress, contending that creation of Hughes county would not injure Twigg and Wilkinson counties but in time would help both. Only a few square miles would be cut from each county, it was pointed out.

Senator J. A. Dixon is chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments.

Many Prominent Social Affairs Featured on Today's Calendar

Today will be a gala day at the Atlanta Woman's club, when two unusually interesting affairs are to be given. One is to be in honor of the governor of our state and his charming wife and the other will be for Mrs. Gladys Hanson Cook, distinguished member of the aristocracy of the American stage. Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the Atlanta Woman's club will be hostess to Governor and Mrs. Walker, and the member of the executive board of the Atlanta Drama league will honor Mrs. Cook. This attractive club forms a beautiful setting for the many delightful events taking place in the spacious reception rooms and lovely grounds, where the new swimming pool adds so greatly to the charm of the scene of these gatherings.

Other parties of social prominence on the calendar for the day are those being tendered to the many attractive visitors who help the stay-at-homes to enjoy the varied summer pleasures at the homes of their hostesses and at the social clubs and other attractive rendezvous for the gay events of the season.

Mrs. Franklin Mikell will entertain at the Piedmont Driving club at a delightful afternoon tea for her sister, Mrs. Roy B. Harrison, of New Orleans, who will be her house guest for a few weeks. Another enjoyable affair will be the tea for Miss Emma Thomas O'Neil, of Charleston, at which Miss Anais Gay Jones is to entertain at her home on Twelfth street. Miss Camilla Alsop, of Richmond, Va., will be the central figure at a luncheon followed by bridge at the home of her hostess, Mrs. Russell Porter, on the Prado.

Miss Elizabeth Dennis, a bride-elect, will be honored at the bridge luncheon at which Mrs. W. L. Champion will entertain. Another delightful affair of the day will be the swimming party and tea at which Mrs. Robert K. Rambo will be hostess, honoring Miss Helen Douglas at the Druid Hills Golf club, when 10 friends of the honor guest will be entertained. The Capital City roof garden will be scene of the regular Tuesday evening dinner-dance, which is always a popular event.

The remaining days of the week promise to carry out the interesting program of parties that make today's calendar of social importance.

DAILY CALENDAR OF WOMEN'S MEETINGS

The regular meeting of Decatur chapter, No. 148, O. E. S., will be held this evening at 8 o'clock, in the Masonic hall, Decatur. All members of the order in good standing are invited.

The W. B. A. will hold its regular meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Georgia Tech Woman's club will meet this afternoon, July 21, at 3:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. D. P. Savant, 163 Techwood drive.

Poole, whose husband is superintendent of the Central of Georgia Railway terminal at Tybee, were being driven to the southern end of the island by one of the station employees. They were going for a small son of the Poole family, who had been attending a party. When the Poole machine was about 500 yards from the Poole cottage it was struck by another car. Miss Pickett was killed and Mrs. Poole injured.

Members of Miss Pickett's family stated today that previous reports to the effect that the driver of the Poole machine was drunk at the time of the accident are without foundation and untrue. They say he was so unnerved by the incident that associates restrained him from taking his own life with difficulty.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

ANSWERED LETTERS.

Irene S.—A girl of 15 should have no need for powder and massage creams. Your complexion will be perfect if you take enough exercise and a full warm bath every day. You will overcome the tendency to an oily skin if you take a balanced diet, one in which there will be green vegetables and salads, instead of so much starch.

Worried—I do not think you can make your nostrils smaller than they are naturally.
Mrs. X.—Use the pilocarpine hair tonic just as you would any other tonic; and in any case when applying a tonic to the scalp, shake it to get all the ingredients together, if there is any sediment at the bottom of the bottle. Be sparing with the tonic but generous with the amount of massaging that accompanies the application to the scalp. It is the scalp that needs the tonic and not the hair, so apply it by massaging with finger tips that are moistened from time to time with the tonic.

Another method is to part the hair in a number of places and apply the tonic along the parts a drop at a time from a medicine dropper, and follow this by massaging thoroughly.

Worried One, Bootsie—A girl of 18 years, height five feet, one and a half inches, is normal weight at 110 pounds. Peanuts are fattening because of the oil in them, but no more so than any other nuts. The blotchy skin must come from digestive troubles and poor elimination. It will help you if you simplify your diet over the hot months, by eating less meat and more of the green vegetables and fruit.

Buddie—Try the following method for removing all dandruff from your scalp before shampooing. Beat together the white and yolk of an egg and apply it directly to the scalp. To do this you may have to separate the hair into a number of strands, and then with finger tips massage while you apply the egg to the scalp. The more you do this, the better, as the dandruff becomes loosened and adheres to the egg. Allow 20 minutes or longer to let the application thoroughly dry, and then proceed as with any other sort of shampoo. The scalp will be perfectly clean when you are through, as all the dandruff will be removed with the egg.

Unhappy B. E.—It will help your figure considerably if you play tennis an hour or more three times a week.

Any of the other sports also will be beneficial, but tennis will make your hips trim and take all the fat off of your back and shoulders. It also will make your spine more supple so that you hold yourself properly, and therefore get full credit for all of your height.

Reader.—There is no danger in having hair removed with the electric needle method. Some people have had small scars that stayed for a time, but their work must have been done by people who were not competent. Make sure that you are being treated by a reliable person. Some hairs do grow again and require a second treatment to eliminate them entirely.

Tomorrow—Blackhead Treatments.

Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers—that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in illustrated pamphlet form. To secure this valuable information, you must address Miss Forbes in care of this paper, asking for her pamphlet, "Beauty," and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in stamps.

WEATHER BUREAU EXPECTS SHOWERS, EVEN TEMPERATURE

Thundershowers are forecast for this afternoon with no appreciable change in temperature, according to the statement issued by C. F. von Herrmann, head of the local weather bureau.

"The outlook is favorable for showers later on in the day and the temperature should range from 70 to 80 degrees," he said.

Monday the mercury started its daily climb at 70, reached 86 at noon and 80 about 3 o'clock, which was high point for the day. Sunday it ranged from 73 to 89 and similar conditions are expected today.

Plan for Ending Poverty.

William E. Knox, president of the American Bankers' association, has declared that industry should organize itself in such a manner that employees would be able to make themselves financially independent against old age. Pensions were a part of the plan he suggested, the employees being allowed to help pay for them in advance and to be helped toward a systematic savings system.

GIVEN 1 TO 5 YEARS FOR THEFT OF AUTO

George O'Connor, taken in custody by Detectives Poole and Smith on July 3, on charges of suspicion in connection with the theft of an automobile, Monday was given a sentence of from one to five years on the Fulton county chain-gang by Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court.

O'Connor is said to have stolen a car belonging to Sanders Heater Mitchell Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., and to have brought it into Georgia.

FREE MONEY ASKED AT SAVANNAH PORT

Permission to incorporate the Savannah port authority so that body can deal with the federal government in an effort to have a free zone created at Savannah, will be sought through a bill to be introduced in the senate and house on Wednesday by Senator Morgan, of the first district, and the Chatham delegation.

The bill has been prepared by Gordon Saussey, of Savannah, and will provide for incorporation of the port authority so that it will be a public corporation, with no capital stock and no dividends to pay. The port authority can then deal with the government as a corporate body for the purpose of the free zone.

A free zone at Savannah would mean that raw materials may be brought into that port, manufactured into finished goods and then exported without payment of an import tariff. This would mean that costs of manufacture of articles for export, when the raw material is obtained from South America or some other foreign country, would be greatly reduced, it is said.

The free zone at Savannah would be a free zone, it is pointed out, as it would mean a tremendous increase in business, and would enable the state's exports to increase to an enormous amount.

Georgia Gas Tax Brings $991,

The Golden Beast

-BY-

E. Phillips Oppenheim

They were in a room of the same size as the one which they had just left. The floor, composed of ordinary wood blocks, was perfectly bare, the walls of plain cement remained exactly as they had been left by the builders. The only window was in the roof—a great piece of stained orange-colored glass—the only article of furniture, a wooden bench in the middle of the room, unadorned and with a single cushion of insignificant size. There was nothing here to kindle the imagination in any way, not even a cupboard or a table, and the only thing might be concealed, she looked round the walls wondering, and suddenly she gave a little involuntary gasp. The door on the inside had been painted the same color as the wall. To all appearance they were in an hermetically sealed chamber.

"Explain, please," she insisted. "You disappoint me," he confessed. "To me my place of refuge has always seemed a trifle obvious. It is here I think. The room was built for no other purpose."

There was an unsatisfied expression in her eyes. After a moment he continued. "You are upsetting many theories," she reminded him. "An artist, for instance, would say that the best place for him to go to study a proposed picture would be a place where he could live and move amidst beautiful surroundings."

"I should join issue with him," Pauline declared. "Under those conditions there would be a vein of reproduction in his work. Any one who is ambitious to create should start from a state of negation if he desires to give of his own brain, his own constructive force. You are cold," he added quickly. "I am sorry. The atmosphere of this place is always a little chilly."

Her fit of shivering passed. It had come with the sight of that lock—the door, the feeling of being alone with him, cut off from the rest of the world. A sudden melody of desires seemed to give to the seconds an absurd significance. She wanted to rush to the door and beat against it, to stay where she was and look upwards again through that orange light. He was standing as he had done from the moment of his entrance several feet away from his hands behind his back, his attitude towards her irreproachable, almost distant. She was suddenly quite sure that she hated him.

"Well," she observed slowly, "I've penetrated one of the mysteries."

"The only one," he assured her, as he led the way towards the door and swung it open.

They were back in the sitting room, back in that atmosphere of roses and cigarette smoke and old calf bindings, with its faint background of pungent drugs. She breathed a deep sigh of something like relief. When she sank into her chair once more, she found her knees were trembling. She stretched out her hand for another cigarette.

"Don't be afraid I am going to outstay my welcome," she said. "I give myself another five minutes. Can I take you anywhere?" he answered. "I have my own little car here which I can run for me. I leave at all manner of times."

She pointed towards the other door, but he shook his head.

"In there," he explained, "I study and pursue experiments, some of which are absolutely unconnected with the business. I have a laboratory and, beyond, a bedroom and a bathroom, which I use when I have to stay here all night."

"Tell me about your research work which is not for the firm," she begged. "It is too inclusive," was the colorless reply.

"What is going on just now in your laboratory," she persisted, "true flames and retorts and fizzing of steam and that sort of thing."

"Nothing of that kind at all," he assured her.

Futzy made his noiseless appearance, and murmured a few words to his master, who, after a moment's hesitation, nodded.

"You will excuse me," he asked, turning to Judith. "I have to speak for a moment upon the private telephone in my bedroom. Your cousin Samuel, it appears, has something urgent to say to me."

"Let me go," she suggested, half rising.

"I shall not be a moment," he replied. "If you don't mind waiting, I will see you to your car."

He passed behind her chair towards the door which had excited her curiosity. She turned her head and followed his movements. Unfastened the door with another key from his fob, opened it only just far enough to pass through, and closed it with a firm bang, almost a slam. Her eyes remained riveted upon the door. Scarcely knowing what she did, she rose to her feet. The very force with which he had closed the door had defeated his intention. The latch had not slipped back to its place. Meanwhile—

She crossed the room, obeying simply a blind impulse. She had no sense of shame. She knew that she was yielding to an ungovernable, unjustifiable curiosity, but a curiosity deeper than any mere desire to understand the why and wherefore of his resistance. She stood quite close to the door. Somewhere in the distance she could hear his voice at the telephone. She slipped her finger against the gleaming latch, pushed it back, and swung the door a foot open. She gazed eagerly into the room, hugging her excitement, breathlessly eager to discover in that swift glance which she had decided must be all she could allow herself something of the unusual. She had her glance, and the world seemed suddenly to resolve itself into a place of sick and unmentionable horrors. Her self-control went with her failing senses. Her shriek rang through the rooms as she tottered backward, her hands pressed frantically over her eyes, asking only of life the forgetfulness which came with her swoon.

INSTALLMENT VI.
The Chamber of Horrors.

Judith opened her eyes to the pungent odor of retorts and the stimulating consciousness of Pauline's presence. He rose from his knees and removed his fingers from the pulse which he had been feeling.

"You are all right now," he said, quietly. "Even Fatima paid the price, you know. I must apologize for my carelessness. I must have left the door of my chamber of horrors open."

"You left it unlatched," she told him. "I pushed it open."

her back until he had made the place as brilliant with electric light. "Now," he pointed out, "you will see that neither my skeletons nor my heads are so alarming as they seemed. Here is the explanation of this room, since you have forced it from me. Besides being a fairly capable chemist I am supposed to be something of an authority upon the nervous system. The skull which you see grinning at you there, with its background of black cloth, has been fitted with those imitation nerves—thin silver wire you see they are actually where any skeleton in the corner I consider rather a masterpiece. I have left it in my will to Gabor, the Frenchman, who is the greatest living authority upon psychic disturbances of the brain. There are three skulls there, 'one of them unfortunately with a small electric light behind which probably were responsible for your fainting fit. They are scarcely fit for lay eyes at present,' he added, dropping a cloth over them. 'I had to have them in that condition to verify an hypothesis which I have recently put forward with regard to the transmission of external influences to the cerebral nerves.'"

"What a chamber of horrors!" she cried. "What is the chair there for, and the dynamo, and those strange coils?"

"You must really excuse me," he said, smiling. "If I leave just a little mystery attached to my investigations. What I have explained to you I have explained for the sake of your peace of mind. It was not my intention to divulge to you the hobby of which this room is the outcome."

"They were back in the sitting room. He closed the door firmly behind him. 'I am sorry,' he continued, 'that your visit has ended a little disastrously. You will absolve me from blame. I am sure. I had no idea of obtruding this portion of my activities upon you.'"

"There is no need for you to be sarcastic," she complained. "I behaved badly, but I have certainly suffered for it."

"It might have been worse," he remarked, somewhat cryptically.

"Worse?" she repeated with a shudder. "I imagine it. I am not a nervous person, but I never had such a shock in my life."

"Worse for me, I mean, not for you," he explained. "My heads might have been covered in. They often are. As a matter of fact, they would have been today but that I have been repressing the tension of Henry's case. How could that have made it worse?" she demanded.

"You might have passed on to my holy of holies beyond. What I should have done with you then I can't imagine."

"What an annoying reflection," she sighed. "I have really missed something there."

"What you will not miss," he remarked, with a glance at the clock, "is seeing your cousin Samuel, if you don't hurry. It was he who was telephoning. He is on his way here now."

"Then, please, let me fly," she begged. "He is dining at home with us tonight, and I don't wish to see any one just now if I can help it."

"I can let you out through Futzy's quarters," he suggested.

"Anything to avoid Samuel," she assented.

He led the way down into the courtyard and dispatched Futzy for her car. She was still a little pale and her manner had lost something of its poise.

"You're not in the habit of fainting, are you?" he asked, looking at her curiously.

"I have fainted once before in my life," she told him, "when I saw a man killed in a steeplechase. When you took me into that room the second time, of course, it was nothing, but the first time I didn't know what to expect. The light was shining just behind that horrible skull and those others—they all seemed to be grinning at me. The setting is a little melodramatic, isn't it—that black background?"

"Probably," he admitted. "It is there because I have to see them clearly myself. When you find your income increased by another hundred thousand a year or so, as is possible at the moment, you will perhaps forgive me."

The car turned the corner and drew up. He handed her in.

"Will you come and dine again soon?" she asked.

"No, thanks," he answered. "I hate dinner parties. I would rather see you alone."

She hesitated.

"Well, you can telephone," she said, leaning back in her place.

Samuel Junior, who had been waiting in the reception room, presently made his appearance. He looked around him with frank interest.

"Can you guess what I've come for?" he asked. "It's that draught you gave the governor. It made a new man of him. He enjoyed his luncheon and actually smoked a cigar afterward—a thing he hasn't done for a year. He was as bright as a button all the afternoon and then, as you warned him, he became sleepy. He wants to know whether he can have a prescription."

Pauline stood quite close to the door. "I am sorry," he said. "I can't give him one."

"I say," Samuel protested. "Why not? No blooming etiquette or anything of that sort, is it? Surely you wouldn't consider that under the circumstances?"

"That is not the reason," was the curt reply. "I used an unknown drug which no ordinary chemist would be able to procure and I used it in conjunction with another which is dangerous to take at any time except under special conditions."

"Well, I suppose you know best," Samuel conceded reluctantly. "I tell you what you could do if you would, though, Pauline. My heart's as sound as a bull's, but—well, just feel my pulse."

"You left it unlatched," she told him. "I pushed it open."

He felt her pulse again, and, satisfied with her condition, moved away. Her eyes followed him.

"Well?" she faltered.

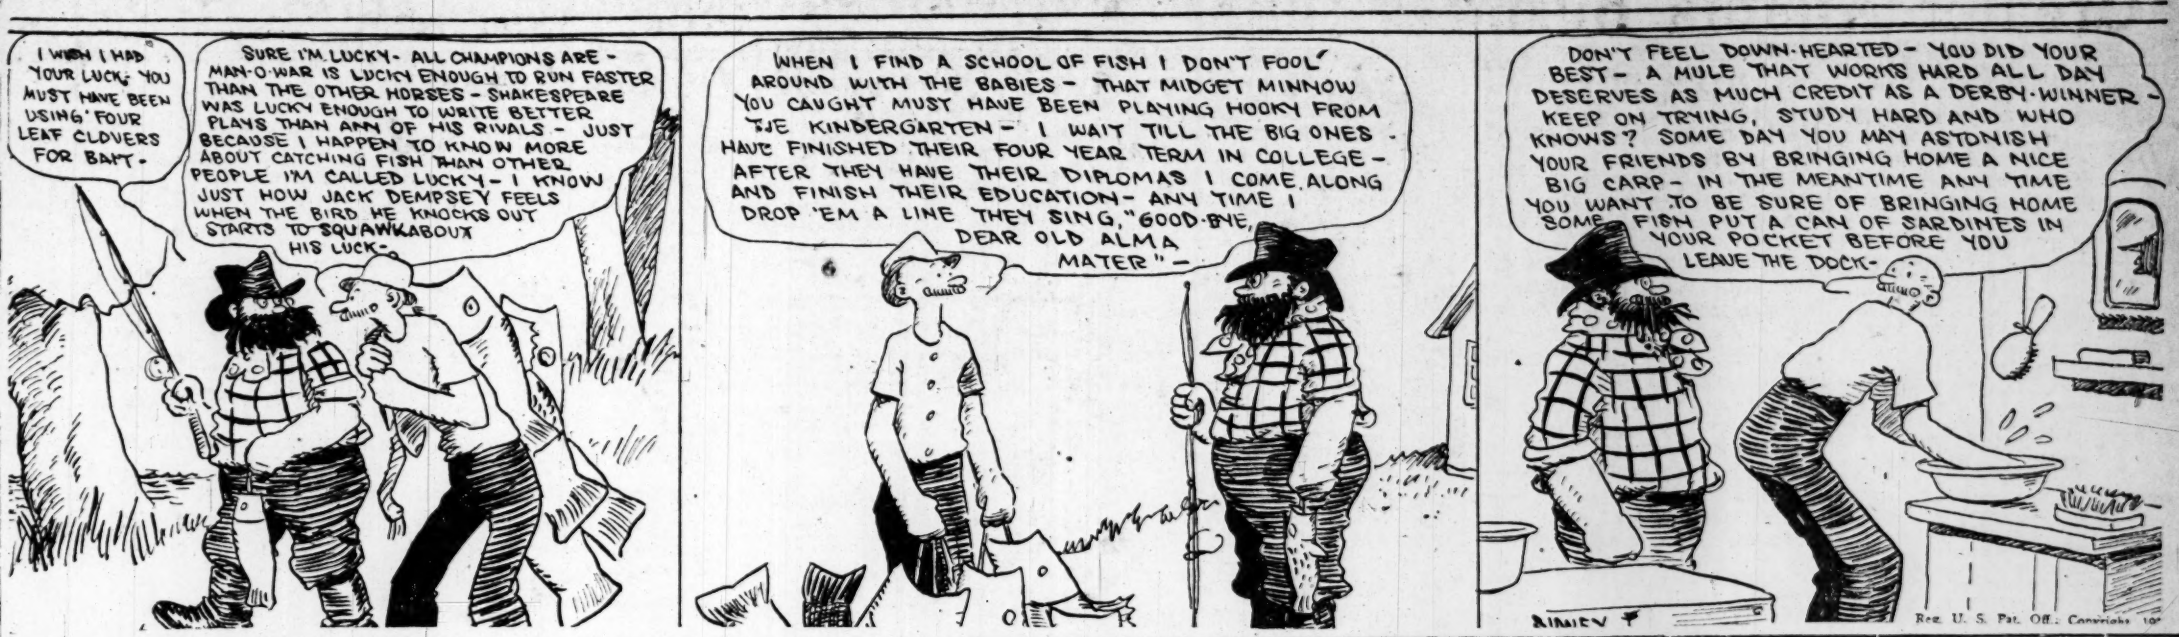

"Well?" he echoed.

"You will explain," she begged. "Is it for Fatima to make terms?" he remarked grimly. "However, I will be generous. I was to blame, perhaps, for not securing the door. Do you think you could bear to look in again, leaning on my arm?"

"Yes," she assured him.

She struggled to her feet. He led her way, unlocked the door, but kept

Creation of Department For Advertising Atlanta Favored By City Council

Amendment Passed Asking Legislature for Authority To Establish Exploitation Bureau.

Creation of a department of advertising for exploiting Atlanta's natural resources, and advantages, and explaining them to the outside world was favored Monday by city council in passage of a charter amendment which asks the legislature for authority to establish such a department.

The measure was given almost unanimous approval of council, and the mayor is expected to sign it today, as he already has expressed himself in favor of such a move as part of the campaign to boost Atlanta and Georgia.

Committee In Charge. The charter amendment authorizes establishment of a department of advertising, to be operated under direction of a councilmanic committee, and to draw its funds from general taxes.

B. Hartsfield, Claude E. Buchanan and J. L. Carpenter, and came to council with a unanimously favorable report of the charter revision committee.

Allderman Buchanan, in speaking for the measure, told of similar work being done by other cities, and explained that a campaign to advertise Atlanta is in direct line with the booster drive now under way here.

Councilman C. J. Vaughn also urged council to adopt the paper, stating that the importance of stimulating Atlanta's growth overshadows all other issues, and that a city advertising department is the proper method of convincing residents of other sections of the country that this city can offer inducements superior to any city in the south.

Councilman J. Allen Couch opposed the paper, charging that there already are too many departments. However, his motion to table was defeated overwhelmingly, and the charter amendment was passed by a count of 24 to 3.

Vote On Movement. Aldermen Hartsfield, Moon, Armistead, Buchanan, Williamson, Ford, Carpenter and Smith, and Councilmen Wardlaw, Aven, Chosewood, White, Vaughn, Etheridge, Baker, York, Jenkins, Reynolds, Russell, Knight, Callaway, Cooper, Sudderth and Saunders voted for the measure, while Aldermen Couch and McLenon, and Councilman Inman were its only opponents.

Council also went on record as favoring another step along the same line when it approved a charter amendment which, if passed by the legislature, would legalize appropriations used to pay expenses of city department heads to national conventions.

Alderman Jesse W. Armistead was the author of the measure, and in introducing it, he explained that in addition to giving the department heads an invaluable education, sending them to conventions is a fine manner of advertising the city.

Billboards To Tell Tourists of Nation All About Atlanta

Plans for placing billboards on all highways leading to Atlanta and in leading cities in Georgia and other states, were adopted by the members of the Secretaries' club at its regular monthly meeting Monday at the Winceoff. These signs will advertise Atlanta's climate, location and advantages. One of these billboards, 10x60 feet, will be placed in Miami, Fla. A feature of the meeting was an address to the club by W. G. Suttle, managing editor of the Savannah Press and former president of the Georgia Press association. He invited the people of Atlanta to visit Tybee and help make it Georgia's playground.

Another feature was the inauguration of the new president of the club, J. P. McGrath.

GULF COAST RESORTS DRAWING TOURISTS

Biloxi, Miss., July 20.—(Special.)—These are "gala days" on the Mississippi Gulf coast. The beaches are ringing with the joyous shouting of the thousands of carefree merry-makers sporting in the rolling surf or cavorting along the long stretches of gleaming white sands.

Water sports are claiming a very large majority of the vacationists as the season advances. Excursion boats loaded with laughing pleasure seekers, going to the outlying islands for surf bathing or deep sea fishing, can be seen hourly gliding through the waters of the gulf. The Isle de Caprice, the Mississippi coast's newest pleasure resort which just recently opened, is gaining in popularity with the younger set. Ship island is attracting thousands to its beautiful beaches and historical points of interest.

James Baker, Jr., of the Mississippi Coast Hotel association, stated Monday that among the inquiries for rates and other information regarding the resort features of the Mississippi Gulf coast are pouring in by the hundreds from all points in the southland, there are many requests coming from people north of the Ohio river, who are beginning to realize the advantages of the Mississippi Gulf coast as a summer watering place.

Decatur, Ga., July 20.—(Special.)—A unique program featured by addresses of welcome by Rachel Bond Sorrow, 4, and Forrest Ragsdale, 6, Wednesday, July 29, is slated to mark the centennial birthday party of Rock Chapel, oldest Methodist church in DeKalb county.

Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, and Rev. M. L. Twigg, pastor of the St. John's Methodist church, of Atlanta, two former pastors, will be principal speakers, while Dr. J. W. Quillian, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church, and Rev. J. W. Many other leading ministers of the state, who have been connected in a prominent way with the church, will be present.

The church is located near Lithonia, and a special committee is in charge of arrangements. The celebration will last all day.
